Move Over Pharma, Big Tech is Here to Play.

The femtech revolution is in full swing, and with its role in driving women's health outcomes through increased data collection and the integration of ML, AI, and cloud services, its potential hasn't gone unnoticed by 'Big Tech'. Notable software giants in the cloud services landscape have started to move into the space. But what does this mean for the women's health market and the incumbents that have traditionally dominated the space? How has technology transformed the space? What can big pharma learn from the tech giants? Join this discussion to unpack these questions, hearing from those at the forefront as they outline the opportunities to move the needle through the technological healthcare revolution.
